Greater Boston Meeting - March 22, 2013

The meeting started with Al Smith leading us with the pledge of Allegiance. This was followed by CWRTGB president Dave Smith leading us in a moment of silence for recent CWRTGB members and friends who have recently died. These include Jim Broome of Marion, Preston Sturdevant of Auburn, Charles Franco of Malden and Jeannette Aline McCarthy of Waltham(Mother of Waltham Mayor Jeannette McCarthy).

Dave mentioned that plans are in the works for a recognition dinner sometime next year to show appreciation to some of our long term members who have made significant contributions to our Round Table as well as improve knowledge and help preservation efforts. Dave mentioned about the Oliver Wendell Holmes Dinner this November to honor RI Judge and Lincoln Historian Frank Williams as well as the upcoming 4 days in May trip to Chancellorsville, VA. Dave mentioned about recent and future events at the National Archives in Waltham. The commander of the U.S.S. Constitution will speak about the ship on April 18th. Also mentioned were two living history reenactments coming the first weekend in June. One for the 54th Mass on Boston Common and the other in Lynn, MA.

Dave then introduced Waltham History teacher Janice Marchese who spoke to us on the Making of the US Constitution.

To understand the making of our constitution, we must understand what came before it. For many years England and France contested for power in the new world. This struggle in North America would culminate in the French and Indian wars. These wars left England with a depleted Treasury. To make up for this, England taxed the colonies. These taxes, especially the tax on Tea helped spur the colonists to protest. Literature such as Thomas Paine’s Common Sense helped motivate the colonists to move toward independence. Some such as Britain’s William Pitt pushed for compromise, but in the end, we went to war. Many places in America are named after him including Pittsburg PA. After our independence from England we established The Articles of Confederation. It was not long before we soon saw major problems with such a loose confederation. There was the lack of any central treasury and no army for defense. James Madisen was one of the first to speak out for something new. At the constitution convention, George Washington was elected as its leader. The writings of John Locke helped frame many of the discussions. Maddison’s notes on the convention shows us the wide divergence of opinion at the convention. One of the early proposals was the Virginia Plan. It proposed a strong central government with 3 branches (legislative, executive and judicial). Some of the states, especially the smaller ones saw this as putting too much power in a central government. They countered with the New Jersey plan which pushed for a mere revision of the Articles of Confederation to allow the existing congress to more easily raise revenues and regulate commerce. After much debate, this was defeated. In the end, a great compromise was reached. There had been much contention between north and south about how slaves were to be counted in terms of representation and taxation. This was resolved with the counting of 3/5 th’s of the slave population. The constitution was the end was a great compromise between those wanting a strong central government (Federalists) and those pushing for states rights (Anti-Federalists). After the convention the Anti- Federalists pushed for amendments on what would become the Bill of Rights for what they saw as putting some limits on the power of a strong central government.

We have always known that there was EVIL among us. Yesterday it became an unforgettable part of our History once again, as we were celebrating our American History, our American Spirit, and our American Lives. As the first explosion happened, they ran towards it, not knowing if another would come. Then a second explosion happened, and STILL they ran towards it, again not knowing if another would come. They are the Doctors, the Nurses, The Police, the Firefighters, The EMTs, the Marathon Volunteers, and the Citizens of America who would once again run towards the dangers to claim their Rights, their Freedoms and their Independence. They would run towards the Danger once again to show the EVIL what is the TRUE American Spirit of helping one another in a time of need. God Bless America.

"From Schoolboy To Soldier---
The Correspondence, Letters, Journal Entries of Edward Stanley Abbott" compiled by Quincy S. Abbott

This is a short book recently sent to me for my reading and review which I now mt state that I thouroughly enjoyed it for many reasons.

Mostly, besides the excellent writing, it is about an ordinary, common soldier who writes about himself and his family situations and his thoughts on why the War was fought and how it would end.

Quincy S. Abbpt is the great grand nephew of Edward S. Abbott, who happens to be the great grand nephew of Nathan Hale. Qunicy is also the Family Historian and Genealogist of sor this family is an old New england family with a long line of Military links since this Nation began. He compiled this book with an excellent collection of ddrawings, maps, and genealogy lists.

As for Edward Stanley Abbot, he was a young writer who always wanted to be a writer, even if his fame would come posthumously. He would state that "I care not whether my work be read now or by posterity. I can afford to wait a cernury for readers when God himselfhas waited six thousand years for an observer."

He will write about his family relationships, his views on why the War should be fought, and how he sees this Nation. he believed that someday, this Nation would be hundreds of millions in population and apowerful part of this Globe.

He will write about a Southern friend of his who leaves to fight for the Confederacy. He will also describe the many Battles that he was in from Fredericksburg to Chancellorsville to Little Round Top at Gettysburg where he will sustain his fatal injuries and die on July 8, 1863.

As I said earlier, an excellent book that is well worth buying and reading multiple times.
